You can download all.They are the most widely-used, and probably the loudest, sign of the season for Hurricanes fans. Teams wearing their sweaters during the upcoming NHL lockout have no problem receiving a boost in rating from the fans. On Sunday night, the Hurricanes outdrew the Minnesota Wild at the RBC Centre. With an 8-5 Wild win, the home team drew 30,250 fans. It was the fifth sellout of the season. That's despite a tough scheduling situation for Carolina with back-to-back games against Western Conference powerhouses Los Angeles Kings and San Jose Sharks. The Hurricanes have sold out 8 of the past 10 home games, including seven straight. "I think it gives you more confidence in the ownership," said Carolina defenceman Tim Gleason. "Just the fact that they're willing to do all they can do to give their fans the best possible games and experience. "It's great for us. It puts us in a great position to keep the streak going." The attendance was one of the few bright spots on a very disappointing home-stand. The team came in with a league-low six wins. They suffered a 4-0 shutout loss to the Los Angeles Kings and a 3-1 loss to the New Jersey Devils.

They salvaged the day by beating the New York Islanders 5-4 in overtime. "You can't lose six games in a row," said Gleason. "It's important that we get a win tonight (against Anaheim). That's been our focus since training camp. It's been the same
