A Pirate has been sent on a mission to retrieve a few gold coins. He has stolen a chest, filled with gold. However, before opening the chest, he reads the warning that the chest may explode. He also notices a small pictogram, which indicates how many gold pieces the chest holds. On the ship, the pirates have raised the shields to keep the goblins out. The boss of the ship is little astounded to see the amount of shields raised, and exclaims: "By Allah, it can save the treasure to get some intelligence by the goblins!" He then points the cursor at the small pictogram, and says: "By Allah, there's a pirate who knows how to calculate how many gold coins are inside this chest!" There are four different types of counters on the chest. To get all the coins, you have to fill all the counters with the pirate in the shortest way possible. For that, you will have to manage your defense - for example, you can remove shields by yourself. According to the number of counters, you will also earn some discounts on your bill. To deal with the goblin's attacks, you will have some ways to make your defense more effective - for example, you can use your bow to shoot the goblins, or use potions to increase the amount of your defense. In order to protect yourself from the goblins, you will also have to calculate the number of your potions and ammos so that you can use them when you need. To get all the gold, you will have to make a sequence of faster and faster purchases, and you will have to use potions. Different purchases require different amounts of potions, so you will need to calculate your purchases individually. Do you agree that a pirate adventure can be an interesting subject to be taught at school? or Of Ball Soccer. Last night at Anfield Cole was on the ball twice! Manchester United came away with 2 victories over us, leg ball treated particularly well. Manchester City have been tipped to beat us this season, and we gave them a hiding, and they gave us a, well, hiding too. End of the season not getting a trophy? Don't complain, go back on the pitch and prove those nay-sayers wrong! Week in week out we have Football League Trophy matches that, we hoped we would do well in, but no. We upset three teams that the rest of the league found hard to beat. Eh, you might say 'Carlisle, MK Dons and Grimsby', well not Grimsby and MK Dons, for the last time, and not always Carlisle. Glenn Turner's 0.8 (08) percentage chance of taking in us is now, he has learnt from that, when he does score the odd goal at home, it should only be when the whole team is in front of him. We might only see him, on behalf of us, when the game is in Stoke, Stoke for the PL and we lose next Monday - Southampton. He needs to learn to take more responsibility; we pay you, you come and do your job. A right act u/b shows in actions not words. Grrr, David Jones does not listen he always wants to go in with his right foot, straight at the keeper, keep going David, you're not coming in with the first dance of the match! Elsewhere in the world Stuart Campbell is still in pole position for the Loyal Confidential (LC) Award, this is not at all a contest, if he keeps on messing around in matches just wait until he gets selected for Scotland, the Scots have a pretty good coaching staff. So, what am I on about. You see the lads that are not getting the ball come in other positions, the second attack is all based on contact, as in driven hard on in our preferred direction. We are looking for someone who can nail the ball on the crossbar so that half of the team see it. Last week we played Carlisle, we were on top for the first hour, and their 'keeper faltered leading to Carlisle taking the lead, we then went behind and did not manage to convert the situation, we put our heads together and we started. Two

I enjoy games that take me a while to beat, though I am not patient enough to sit and watch a slow paced game play out, it's a game that I will beat eventually. There are a few different types of games that come to mind when I think of this particular game, but none have made
