Discussion of the Background One example of a hydraulic apparatus of the type described above is shown in Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open Publication No. 2001-329523. In this apparatus, in the case where a torque of a driving force for an output shaft (of a driving force transmission path from an engine to driven wheels) decreases due to a loss of a transmission torque, an oil pressure of a hydraulic pump is increased by a boosting oil pressure generating device. In this regard, conventionally, power consumption in an image forming apparatus may be reduced, for example, when a user selects a printing output mode during a power down period. However, in the conventional image forming apparatus, power consumption cannot be
