Microsoft Office 2K This is the second version of Microsoft Office, released in 1999. Its name stands for “for Windows 95.” To be frank, for many users this version is the same as the original 1.0, and it is basically the same suite as Office 1.0, as well as Office 2000. It has three editions: Standard, Professional, and Enterprise. Standard: Free This is the edition you can download for free. It has all the features of the normal version of Office, but it cannot be updated. It does not add any kind of functionality to the basic version of Office, and it also does not make any changes to the basic functionality of the programs, other than change some of their interface (colors, icons, etc.). Professional: $119 This is the edition that brings the following “professional” features: Collaboration Tools: Access group documents and chat in threaded discussions. Annotate, cite, and tag your documents for

An Office program, developed by the maker of the Windows operating system, Microsoft, and the previously mentioned Microsoft Office suite, you use it to open, update, buy and install Office programs and access their files. It's got a lot of features, among them: To open any Office component, there's an Office button, replacing the little envelope icon, and placed near the File>New menu. It opens the purchase screen of the Microsoft Office suite. It opens the Assistant pane of Word, just like a hyperlink. It shows the history of a file and a list of related work. It brings back the Doc ID from a document it just opened. It automatically installs a program. It creates the appropriate shortcut for a program, which is necessary for shortcuts and that go to the uninstall (not cache) location. Visit Microsoft Store for more information. References: Microsoft Store: Office. Go to Office Beta to start a trial and upgrade to the full version of the app. Go to the Microsoft Store and take a look at Office. Office is not the only Office related program, nor the most recent one, however it may come at hand when you're having trouble getting some Office component or the trial version does not fit your needs. is something else. And this time, with the NBA Finals happening at the same time, there's plenty of basketball around. KDA: It's a big one for the Celtics. We've had two great regular seasons against them, and the teams playing in the Finals have had a big impact on the battle in the Eastern Conference as well. I like Boston's chances here, but Cleveland is clearly a far better team, and they're the better team right now. Still, it's a great final for the league. It's a great final for the league, and obviously everyone wants to see a LeBron-Cavs matchup in this one. OL: LeBron and the Cavs are a force to be reckoned with. Kyrie, though, may be the X-factor. I'm not sure he's recovered from last season yet. Boston is definitely a favorite in this one, but don't sleep on Cleveland.Q: Change Object.__init__() based on the type This might sound crazy but is there a way to change the

We could have done it in reverse order, but then you'd lose some of the link between first-year and second-year classes. I don't want to suggest that, in a department such as mathematics, you won't get the lectures covered by someone else. Reasons I don't want to make it a requirement First, there are some weeks in the year that have commitments that simply wouldn't be fulfilled in any way if I were to push a course that way. I think one of the most important things I want to do as a professor is create and maintain a culture that forces me to push myself to do better than I did the previous year. Forcing classes to be covered by others would slow down that process, and that's one of the things I don't want to do. Second, my commitment to the course and to the students would take a major hit if I had to skip a class. I'd have to pass up class time, and I'd have to miss my chance to exercise some creative control over the content of the class. I'd have to come up with better excuses to the non-math-faculty-participating professors. I don't want to have to make up excuses for that. Third, it will be much more work for me to teach the class. I'm lazy, and I prefer to teach in short spurts. I'm willing to do it in 30-minute blocks (and for a very small class, maybe even shorter); I'm not willing to handle a 60-week schedule. I'm no slacker, but I have to be realistic about what I can and can't do, particularly in a department with such a large number of courses and students. So there you have it.
