In the city of Goldeneye, players can now hack into Far Cry 4's™ main menu system, and start collecting trophies in a new game mode. The "Trophies Mode" task can also be completed as part of the single-player campaign, which comes with 100 Trophies just for doing it all in one sitting. To unlock the Trophies Mode, players must complete the mission "Steal the Appointment", which will initially prompt them to play "Trophies Mode". Another of the modes developed by Ubisoft in conjunction with China's Tencent was also released through WeChat. The "Dancing Room" mode was created to let players test their dancing prowess, and is based on a real time competition that got its start in the city of Shanghai. Tencent has since published similar dancing games in South Korea, France and Italy. In Canada, the mode was released alongside the Mirror's Edge: Catalyst in July. The mode was also released in August alongside Fortnite for PC. In the United Kingdom, Dancing Room was released with Sledgehammer Games'™ CoD: WW2 in November. Upon logging into the in-game WeChat page for your console or PC, a Dancing Room game will be available for download. Once it completes downloading, players can then take it into their WeChat rooms and start up the dancing game. Players can only compete in the Dancing Room if they have logged into the WeChat page for the console or PC they wish to play on first. As players compete in the room, they will earn experience points for their performance. If players can earn more points than the other dancers, they will be able to unlock new outfits or new moves that will appear on their avatars. "Dancing Room" is a great social experience for players of the game, as it c6a93da74d
